Research Paper

Length: 12 to 20 typewritten pages

Due: April 10

Weight: 30% of course grade

Objective: Familiarize the student with the literature and historians of Renaissance and Reformation period.

The student is to pick out a topic from the list provided or develop their own topic with the approval of the professor.

Each research paper should be typed. The margins should be standard. Please do not try to conceal a short paper with over-generous margins. Everyone knows that trick. The paper should be documented with footnotes/endnotes. There should also be a bibliography of works cited.

Schedule of due dates:

Tentative topic, January 31. This will involve turning in one typewritten page containing your name on one line and the topic you have chosen on the next.

Tentative bibliography, February 14. This will involve turning in one typewritten page or more of bibliography. While there is no set number of items required, it ought to list at least eight books and articles.

Preliminary outline, March 20. This can be a rough general outline of one page.

Research paper to be submitted, April 10.

PLEASE NOTE: I am putting you on this schedule so that you will work steadily on your paper throughout the semester. That way, I will get papers that are well written and well researched. For those of you who have had the research courses in history or English, please use what you learned in them. The amount of material you will need to turn in on the first three dates is minimal. But I will expect it to be submitted. Papers not turned in on 10 April will have a half grade deducted for each day they are late, including the weekend.

Papers that are not typed will not be accepted. Papers containing excessive typos and misspellings will be penalized.

If you have any questions, please ask. It is permissible but not advisable to change paper topics.

Possible Research Topics

- ➡➡ Changing biographical interpretations of Luther.
- ➡➡ Changing biographical interpretations of Calvin.

Witchcraft in the Sixteenth Century.

Also, if you are interested in theology, literature, art, or music during the Renaissance and Reformation, please feel free to suggest a topic. If you are not certain about a topic but have a general area you are interested in, I would be glad to help you develop one.

Book Review Assignment

The book you review should not be on the same topic as your research paper. You will need to get instructor approval of your choice on 24 January by submitting an index card with full bibliographic information to the instructor. Completed reviews are due on 6 March.

Assignments should be turned in on the date they are due. Otherwise the instructor will be forced to deduct a late penalty.

Book reviews should be typed and be 3-4 pages in length. They should include information about the author and his qualifications as a scholar, a description of the contents of the book, the opinions of at least two other published reviews, and your reaction to the book (i.e., did you like it, was it well done, what you learned, what it might be used for).

For more detailed instructions on doing a book review see the separate handout or the same material concerning book reviews posted on the course website.
